Bundle of books seven to nine of Beyond These Walls. They have a chance to leave, so why on earth would they go back? Matilda and Olga have had a glimpse of life inside the asylum. The suffering, the torture, the descent into madness. With Grandfather Jacks now dead at their hands, they have a chance to get as far away from the place as possible, but they have to go back; not only is their friend Dianna still locked up in the dark building, but many other innocent women and children are entrapped inside the hellish institution. How can they walk away, knowing those lives might never be spared? And Matilda has a deep wound on her thigh; unless she finds a way to beat the infection spreading through it, she can't go anywhere. They also have to deal with the electricity being out. The tone that once called the creatures to the front of the asylum and held them there has been silenced. The area now belongs to the diseased. Join the gang as they attempt to liberate those in the asylum, find a way to heal Matilda's wounds, and decide if they can trust Hawk, a hunter who nearly sentenced the boys to their deaths by handing them over to Magma. They know the journey ahead of them will take them to places as dark as any they've already visited. But are they ready for things to get even darker? Beyond These Walls is a fast-paced post-apocalyptic survival thriller. This bundle includes:

- The Asylum* (book seven)
- Between Fury and Fear* (book eight)
- Before the Dawn* (book nine)
