Her grumpy orc neighbor has the best buns in town—and his baked goods aren't bad either!

When Elara flees corporate life to open a coffee shop in the small southern town of Fairhaven Falls, the last thing she is looking for is a relationship. But when she meets Grondar, the gruff orc owner of the bakery next door, sparks fly. Literally.

Grondar has been burned by human females before. He has no intention of letting the feisty little female next door get under his skin—no matter how attractive he finds her. And it certainly doesn't mean he's going to let her get away with sabotaging his business.

Despite their disastrous first meeting, Elara still finds herself having inappropriately heated thoughts about the massive orc next door. It doesn't help that every time he stomps over to lecture her, she ends up in his arms!

Can they overcome their initial animosity and their very obvious differences to find their happily ever after?

Cupcakes for My Orc Enemy is a sweet and steamy monster romance that is part of the Fairhaven Falls series.
