Packard Campbell has made a life out of gaming. He's logged thousands of hours in Neural Reality simulators, playing the most in-depth, mind-bending games available.

When an accident forces an unconventional fusion between the NR and cutting edge experimental tech, Packard's understanding of reality changes forever.

Now, Packard and the people he cares about most will have to take a stand against an enemy intent upon redefining the very nature of existence.

To win, they must find a way to stop an entity that operates on the fringe of the rules of science and nature.

Packard's in-game experience might just be what they need to tip the scales in their favor.
