Cori Strattonâ€™s a small-town girl. She loves making candles, and her little gift shop is her pride and joy. But when the shopâ€™s building goes up for sale, she might lose her home and everything that makes her happy. The worst timing of all? Her landlordâ€™s daughter Elizabeth Brennanâ€™popular, smart, and oblivious to Coriâ€™s existence in high schoolâ€™has breezed back into town.

Life has not gone according to plan for Elizabeth. Laid off from her job in the city, sheâ€™s forced back home to help her mom run the familyâ€™s B&B during a week-long wedding celebrationâ€for Lizâ€™s ex. Not wanting the groom to know how in shambles her life is, she grabs the nearest personâ€Coriâ€and tells him how happy they are together.

Lizâ€™s father owning Coriâ€™s building may be the trump card she needs to keep Cori playing along. Can they strike a deal to save Coriâ€™s store and help Liz survive the wedding? Just for the week. Thereâ€™s no way this fake relationship will turn into the real deal.
