I'm losing myself in the nanoverse...
Am I even human anymore?
So many connections...so many people...
But where am I?
The enemy is still out there, somewhere in the nanoverse, trying to absorb humanity into his new digital world.
Whole worlds after the design of any host who has been assimilated into the nanoverse, constructed from the memories of those who have been integrated. There is an appeal to it all...
Do I even want to destroy it anymore?
Have I been fighting on the wrong side of this war from the start?

Posthuman is the third book in Theophilus Monroe's Nanoverse, an action-packed cyberpunk sci-fi thriller series. As a former soldier suffering from PTSD, Brian Goff is not only a threat to the new system, but his very injury has given him control over the nanobots. Like Neo in The Matrix, Goff is an unlikely hero whose "technomagic" makes him the the last hope for human liberty, freedom, and justice.
