Sarah Wright doesn't think something as minor as death should get in the way of her future. With the worst summer of her life behind her, it's time to start focusing on her education. An immortal vampire - even if she is still new at it - pursuing a degree may or may not be a waste of time, but it at least it's a way to keep up an illusion of sanity.

Soon after classes start, a mysterious presence trapped at the school attaches itself to Sarah, and her hopes for a normal college year evaporate. Sensing a lost soul in need, she decides to help. Unfortunately, this particular lost soul belongs to an ancient sect of mystics who aren't at all happy about letting them go.

Worse, they aren't beholden to Aurelie's decree. Protecting her parents and siblings from the "supernatural crap" falls entirely on Sarah's shoulders. One wrong move and her worst nightmare will come true: Losing the only thing she can't un-live without - her family.
